MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT/CEO & BOARD CHAIR

Thank you for your generous support during the Allied Arts 2018 fiscal year. Whether you donated to the annual campaign, sponsored an event or donated in-kind services, you made a difference in Allied Arts’ capacity to provide critical funds and resources to 44 art nonprofit organizations. In turn, these organizations reached more than one million people through a wide range of cultural programs – from blockbuster visual art exhibits to intimate poetry readings, and from free festivals and low-cost events to Oklahoma premieres of acclaimed theatrical productions.

With Allied Arts funding, more than 700,000 arts experiences were delivered to Oklahoma schoolchildren throughout the state. You helped bus rural and low-income urban students to the capital city to tour an exhibit, watch a play and engage in hands-on artmaking. You also helped transport the arts to school auditoriums and afterschool sites, as well as place teaching artists and integrate arts education into the schools that need it most.

Furthermore, Allied Arts agencies remained at the forefront of using the arts as a healing agent. From guitar and ceramics lessons for veterans to dance classes for those suffering from Parkinson’s disease, you played a part in helping the sick, disabled and hospitalized heal faster and use the arts to cope with their condition.

We invite you to continue reading this annual report and learn more about the impact of Allied Arts grantmaking, as well as the success of our fundraising and special event initiatives. On behalf of the Allied Arts board of directors, staff, and member agencies and grantees, thank you again for your support and for helping Allied Arts fulfill its mission of “Enriching Our Communities Through Advancement of the Arts.”
With a theme of “take it to the top,” the Allied Arts 2018 campaign did just that, raising $3,350,047 for central Oklahoma’s cultural community—a 6.9% increase from the previous year. With 5,487 donors, the campaign generated support from large companies and small businesses, CEOs and average Joes, as well as local and national foundations. Every donation regardless of the amount helped Allied Arts surpass its $3.125 million goal and provide elevated support to leading art nonprofits, as you’ll read in the following pages of this report.

Campaign co-chairs Aimee and David Harlow infused energy, excitement and new ideas into the campaign, while honorary chairs Polly and Larry Nichols shared their vision and advocacy. Playing on the “take it to the top” theme, the event paying tribute to the Nicholoses was held at the Devon Tower with guests having a one-of-a-kind opportunity to tour the Devon Rooftop. A major fundraising component of the campaign, the Honorary Chair Event mobilized more than $570,000.

Another integral element of campaign fundraising consisted of the employee giving program. In 2018, 103 local businesses hosted employee giving campaigns, giving their employees an opportunity to learn about the arts and experiment with their creativity. On-site employee giving activities included film plot development workshops, paint and palette, theatre warm-ups and percussion exercises. As a result, employee giving donations generated more than $637,000 for the 2018 campaign—a four percent increase from 2017.

Throughout the 2018 campaign, Allied Arts benefited from incredible partnerships to raise new funds for the arts and generate stronger awareness of Allied Arts. In the spring, OnCue stores featured art-branded cups, with the sale of each cup generating 50 cents in proceeds to Allied Arts. The cups were a hit, as more than 17,000 were sold. Allied Arts was also the beneficiary of a number of events, including the Oklahoma Gazette’s Restaurant Week; a Jimmy Webb concert put on by IonOklahoma and Oklahoma City Community College; donor recruiting events hosted by board members Steve Agee, Russ Harrison, Pam Klepper and Debbie Nauser; international artist Desmond Mason’s “My Love Show” exhibit; a floral arrangement class hosted by The Fleuriste; and proceeds from the biennial Winter Ball. In total, these partnerships contributed more than $52,000 to the campaign.

In addition to its role as a fundraising entity, Allied Arts is a major grantmaking organization for central Oklahoma’s cultural community. The amount Allied Arts can grant on an annual basis is contingent on the funds raised through the campaign. In the 2018 fiscal year, Allied Arts awarded $2,524,458 to 44 cultural nonprofits through its distinct grant programs:

- Allocations
- Educational Outreach
- Capacity-Building
Allocations, the largest grant program, provides vital funding to the Allied Arts network of member agencies. Allocation grants are unrestricted, enabling member agencies to utilize the funds where they will make the most impact. Allied Arts awarded $2.3 million in the 2018 fiscal year, the third largest amount in the organization’s 47-year history and a 4.5% increase from 2017. In total, Allied Arts members agencies reached more than one million people and provided more than 700,000 arts experiences to Oklahoma schoolchildren.

The allocation grant process includes submission of a comprehensive narrative application and financial documents such as audits, budgets and 990s reviewed by two separate committees of board members, executives and community volunteers, as well as the delivery of 30-minute presentations focusing on community impact, sustainability and strategic plans for the future. During the three-day presentation period, member agencies bring their applications to life with performances from students, testimonials from program beneficiaries and examples of their community programs in action.

Due to the fact that Allied Arts is one of the Ballet’s largest supporters, the allocated money goes towards a large amount of the functions of the Ballet. This includes performance production costs, dancer salaries, outreach costs, and school instructors.

The Allied Arts allocation provided the (Oklahoma City) Museum (of Art) with critical funds for exhibition materials and supplies, staff salaries, marketing and communications, web design and maintenance, security, building and grounds, equipment repair, education materials and instructors, utilities, and insurance. Allied Arts’ support is vital in helping extend the Museum’s mission to various segments of the community.

Allied Arts allocations are used for (Opry Heritage Foundation) operational and administrative costs. While our grant funding continues to increase, many grants do not cover operational or administrative costs. The allocations from Allied Arts helps bridge the gaps of our funding.

EDUCATIONAL OUTREACH

In the 2018 fiscal year, Allied Arts awarded 57 grants totaling $194,500 which reached more than 115,000 children throughout the state with engaging and hands-on art education. The focus of the Educational Outreach grant program is to expand the scope of existing projects while also helping fund new initiatives with a focus on increasing access to arts education for at-risk and underserved youth. The funded projects take place in a variety of places including in classrooms, school gyms and auditoriums, afterschool sites and libraries. The projects also range in length from one-day film development workshops at rural high schools to year-round placement of teaching artists in underperforming urban elementary schools. Regardless of the place or duration, all the projects focus on using art to build youth confidence and self-esteem, strengthen creativity and problem-solving skills, foster teamwork and instill an appreciation for art to last a lifetime.

“She has become a new student and her creativity is a catalyst for so many other changes in her. Her reading scores have shot from 4.7 to 6.6, her academic grades in Math, ELA, Science and Social Studies have increased from 70’s to high 80’s and 90’s.”

CAPACITY-BUILDING

In the 2018 fiscal year, Allied Arts awarded 29 grants totaling $29,957 in support of the capacity-building efforts of cultural nonprofits. Supported projects include technology updates to enhance staff efficiency and productivity, organizational strategic planning and professional development opportunities for staff to learn the latest trends in fundraising, marketing and audience development.

Allocation grant amounts approved in FY 2018 and paid in FY 2019.

In 2013, Allied Arts added new member agencies to its umbrella of support for the first time in 12 years. These six new agencies are being phased into the allocations process and will gradually grow to receive their full allocations amount.
SPECIAL EVENTS

In addition to campaign fundraising, Allied Arts coordinates a number of special events to generate operating funds for the organization while also building brand awareness and engendering support from potential new donors. In the 2018 fiscal year, Allied Arts held its annual martini tasting and art auction, ARTini, as well as its annual golf tournament, Chip in for the Arts. Together, the events raised $130,485.

ARTini

Hosted by the Catalyst leadership group of donors aged 40 and younger, the 2018 ARTini marked the 15th anniversary of the event. Held at the OKC Farmers Market on April 13, nearly 1,000 attendees commemorated the event’s milestone while tasting custom-crafted martinis from local lounges and restaurants and viewing more than 100 pieces of art from local artists featured in the auction.

John Krenger, Bank of Oklahoma, and Collins Peck, Smith & Pickel Construction, led a historic effort as co-chairs, raising $101,915 through sponsorship, ticket sales and art/raffle proceeds – the most in Allied Arts history.

CATALYST

Comprised of young professionals 40 and younger, Catalyst provides an opportunity for leadership development, networking and volunteerism in the arts. In addition to overseeing the popular ARTini event, Catalyst offers members monthly get-togethers to learn about the arts in our community and engage in art experiences together.
